Wildlife observed on site

While carefully monitoring wildlife on site to ensure it isn't disturbed and putting in measures like man-made habitats to attract species away from the works, our Ecology Team has taken several photos, as pictured.

These include Turtle Doves, which are a protected bird species under the Wildlife and Countryside Act and are a designated species within the Sandlings Special Protection Area (SPA) and Aldeburgh Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI).

Construction works are set to cross these areas to install the cable ducting for East Anglia TWO.

Therefore, a new grassland habitat has been created to provide an alternative foraging habitat for turtle doves throughout the project and beyond.
